ON AN ATHENIAN COIN.

Pygmalion fashioned me in lazy hours,
When lying in the shade of orange trees,
Hoaring the droning hum of belted bees,
Wingling toward Hymothls and its flowers:
And once I shone in Phryne's lavish dowers;
Once met the wrath of vexed tempestuous seas.
Sailing from Greece with that Alcibiades,
Who braved the Persian monarch and his powers.
Yes, I have lain in fair Aspasia's hand,
And count this honor; I have seen the tears,
That shone for brave sons slain at Salamis;
And now I dwell in this far western land,
A relic of bright Freedom's morning years,
When lips were sweet and not too cold to kiss.

THOMAS S. COLLIER.

THE LEO XIII CORONATION MEDAL.

Bust of Pope Leo XIII to left. Near border LEO XIII PONT M. EL. D. XX M. FEB. A. MDCCCLXXVIII. In exergue II WITTIG AD VIV. EEC. IN AED VATICANIS, signifying that for the first time a medallic portraiture was modeled from nature. The ornaments on the stole are executed with singular felicity, and with special reference to the present Pope. They are, the monogram of Mary, the crossed keys, the coat of arms of the Pecci (a cypress with two lilies and a star) the cross, and a winged angel's head. The reverse is of still more artistic importance in idea and composition copied from the best models of the alto-relievo of the Renaissance. On a pedestal inscribed TIBI DABO CLAVES REGNI COELORUM stands Christ in the act of reaching to kneeling Peter the keys of heavens. Behind Peter are five standing figures, representing the five chief cardinals of the Roman Church, all delineated from nature. Cardinal Mertel holds the tiara, the others are Di. Pietro, Calterini, Consolini, Borromes. On the right at the feet of Christ a kneeling angel with tablet inscribed CORONATUS DIE TERTIS MENSIO MARTIS. In exergue II. WITTIG JNO ET FEC. In the background the Sea of Tiberia, and on the mountains on the other side of the lake a Christian temple. Diameter 3 1-2 inches. 30 struck in bronze; 8 in silver.

WHEN the St. Gothard tunnel was completed, a medal was presented to each man engaged in the work. Ob. VIRIBUS UNITIS. Shields of Germany, Switzerland, and Italy, the first and last crowned. Rev. MARZO 1880. AL LAVORANTI AL TRAFORO DEL GOTTARDO. DEN ARBEITERN AM GOTTHARD TUNNELS. Size 24.

COMING SALES.

May 28th. Messrs. Chapman Brothers, of Philadelphia, will offer through Bangs & Co., a fine collection of American coins, the property of Ferguson Haines, Esq., of Biddeford, Maine.

June 5th. Mr. Ed. Frossard will offer through Bangs & Co., the entire collection of Mr. A. F. Merell, of Detroit, Mich., beside two small invoices of coins and medals. Among the American coins will be found a 1858 proof set, the six pattern trade dollars of 1873, an 1804 dime, and many rare pattern pieces. Among the foreign coins, 6 Zodiac rupees, and many very beautiful and rare coins of India and of the East India Company.

Another collection of which catalogue is under way, will be offered by us in the latter part of June. This will contain a very large number of American medals and coins, and a very full assortment of Continental paper money.

Messrs. W. E. Woodward and J. W. Haseltine also announce sales to take place probably during the coming month. It is however probable that till about September 15, we shall have a season of comparative rest in coin sales, as the majority of collectors are either absent from home or not purchasing much during the summer months.

SCOTT & CO., ON MR. G. C. STENZ.

See St. Luke, Chap. vi., v. 41 and 42.

A little over a year ago the above named firm made in their Coin Journal an impudent, bitter, and most unjust attack against

Mr. W. E. Woodward, simply because this gentleman, after having temporarily withdrawn from the coin business, chose again to enter the lists as a compiler of coin sale catalogues. They feared that with a new opponent of this calibre in the field a still lesser number of coin collections would find their way to market through the capacious stomach of the Fulton Street octopod. And in this the firm was right—the day is in fact as distant as ever when, to use the language of its head, body and tail, “we shall control all important coin sales in the United States.” More recently, in an article which on its face appears like fair enough criticism, but is really garbled and mendacious, worthy to have originated in the fertile brain of D. P., wholesale manufacturer of unique Centennial medals, shirker of auctioneer’s bills, and present confidential clerk of the Great Boaster, the onslaught against competition in the coin business is renewed, this time with the Stenz sale as an objective point. In this so-called review, which appears in the Coin Journal for April, there may possibly be one or two grains of truth, but the difficulty is to discover them among the mass of chaff. In justice to ourself, the compiler of the catalogue and of Mr. Stenz, the owner of the coins sold Feb. 27th and 28th last, we will in as few words as possible, show wherein the so-called review was correct, and wherein it deliberately erred.

1st. No. This sale was not the remnant of the Stenz collection. It was composed of the nearly entire cabinet of the Rev. T. Wilkinson, of Berlin, Prussia, and other coins purchased by Mr. Stenz in Germany since his previous sale. Any one who will take the trouble to compare the two catalogues can easily convince himself of this.

2d. Yes. Here the firm is right. The cabinet was exceedingly rich in fine and valuable foreign crowns and thalers. It is probably for this reason that the sale proved such a decided financial success.

3d. No. The pieces did not "in most instances bring about their face value." The face value of the collection was about $700. The amount realized over $2,300.

4th. No. The 1843 proof set alone was offered as stated in a Wall Street broker's window, at $50. It was also, we believe, offered to Scott & Co. at $50 less com. Why did they not buy it? The set is certainly, both on account of its beauty and its great rarity, well worth $100. In fact, we will give Scott & Co. $100 for a duplicate set of this or an earlier date. Can they procure one? Scott & Co. should have purchased this. It would have proved a remunerative investment, but the margin of profit between $50 and selling price was probably not considered sufficiently large to induce purchase. That set was bought for $100 by Mr. Geo. W. Cogan on an order of $150 or less. Other bids were made to $95, and there were at least 6 bids of from $75 to $95. Now what would the Great Boaster have done under like circumstances. Pray, let us know.

5th. Yes. Mr. Stenz bought at his sale, much to the apparent chagrin of our distinguished contemporary, whose representative had come fully prepared to pick up rare silver coins in nearly proof condition at about 2-3 face value. Mr. Stenz represented several buyers just as the G. B. apparently does at his own sales.

Finally. We are forced to agree with our esteemed and learned reviewer when he says "The course of proceeding we have related should be discountenanced by all who are interested in collecting coins." By following himself the rules he is so eager to have others observe, he may possibly, in the course of time, regain the confidence of collectors, and will no longer be obliged to do, at his own sales, that which he unjustly charges Mr. Stenz of having done.

NUMISMATIC GOSSIP.

The American Silver King has broken the long existing corner in 1858 proof sets. An excellent opportunity is offered to coin speculators to sell short. Try it.—The late issues of 20 cent pieces, of '79 dollars, half dollars, etc., are also offered at more reasonable prices. We opine that the true rarity of a coin or medal cannot be ascertained where precise data is not given until years after its issue.—The craze for Colonial Coins has abated; that for American silver of early dates, or in proof condition, increased.—Rare English silver coins sell cheaper in New York sales than in London. Ditto Foreign silver generally.—We received all the way from Germany, a bid of $7.50 or more for a Hanover 1624 1-2 crown which sold at Stenz sale for $1. After considerable correspondence we traced the piece to New Orleans and got it at $6.—1799 cents are in very little demand now; a Boston dealer has 10 in stock and no orders.—The true inwardness of the Confederate States half dollar is to be exposed by Bro. Harzfeld—so says Bro. Mason.—Mr. F. Blazy, 56 Ninth Ave., New York, is out with a list showing cash prices paid for American coins.—The American Numismatic Herald, published by A. B. Carmean, Richland, O., has made its appearance. If the excellence of its first numbers continues, it will prove a formidable rival and competitor of the C. C. J.—We have in our possession a 1793 chain cent without dot after legend and date, of original red color, sharply struck, and perfectly uncirculated.—Our thanks are due to the American Archaeologic and Numismatic Society of New York for election as corresponding member.—Mr. Thomas Warner, of Cohocton, Steuben Co., N. Y., a well known collector, lately celebrated the 25th anniversary of his marriage. Hronic impecuniosity prevented us from being present in body, though we were in spirit. May Heaven shower its blessings upon thee and thine."
